

Festive Ferrero Rocher shortage looms

Spectre of Christmas without beloved yuletide treat devastating

The UK faces a festive Ferrero Rocher shortage after workers voted to strike

More than a dozen staff at Cargill Cocoa and Chocolate are set to walk out in a dispute over pay.

Workers rejected a real terms pay cut at the confectionery giant's site in Worksop, Nottinghamshire.

Cargill Cocoa and Chocolate is one of the UK's largest supplier of coco products to the confectionary industry, including to the manufacturers of Ferrero Rocher.

100 per cent of workers balloted voted to back strike action, with dates for the walk outs to be announced in the coming days.

Cameron Mitchell, GMB Organiser, said:

"The spectre of Christmas without this beloved yuletide treat would be devastating.

"That's exactly what's on the cards if company bosses don't act urgently to avoid strike action

"Workers aren't demanding gold-wrapped pay-outs, instead they're asking for a pay packet that covers the bills.

"We urge company top brass to urgently back around the table with a fair offer for our members."
