NHS let down by ‘outrageous’ non-announcement on workers' pay

GMB Union writes to Prime Minister and Health Secretary demanding they intervene before recess

GMB, the union for health workers, has slammed today’s ‘outrageous’ non-announcement on NHS pay.

Rachel Harrison GMB National Officer, said:

“This is completely outrageous – virtually the last day of Parliament and the Government has insulted hard-working NHS workers once again by staying silent.

“NHS workers who tuned in to watch the Minister today will be rightly disgusted by this lack of respect.

"NHS staff have put themselves in harm's way throughout the pandemic and as a health union we cannot accept MPs swanning off on holiday leaving health workers in limbo.

“GMB has today written to the Prime Minister and Health Secretary to demand they intervene and set out their response on NHS pay before the summer recess."
