

Chancellor's vision offers hope of reindustrialisation

GMB Union described Chancellor John Healey's speech today [Monday] as offering hope for a reindustrialised Britain.

Gary Smith, GMB General Secretary, said:

"The Chancellor's speech was full of hope and optimism for a reindustrialised Britain.

"From shipyards in Devon, to Merseyside, Rolls-Royce in Derby to the banks of the Clyde – GMB members across the UK can't wait to get started on a steady drum beat of work that can transform their communities."
