

UK Manufacturing crumbling, latest figures show

Every week more and more contracts and jobs are put at risk – people are worried sick about

UK manufacturing output plummeted at the fastest rate in years last month, shock new figures show.

According to the monthly purchasing managers' index (PMI) released this morning UK manufacturers' output fell by the most in seven years in July 2019.

“ Our members have been protesting for 24 hours over job fears at the Harland and Wolf Shipyard in Belfast where the Titanic was built.

We demand the shipyard is renationalised, securing hundreds of jobs and Belfast's place as a global centre of shipbuilding. #SaveOurShipyard pic.twitter.com/SezwY0svKE

Jude Brimble, GMB National Secretary, said:

“The Tories are steering the economy into the rocks with their chaotic approach to Brexit and failure to invest in UK manufacturing industries.

“Every week more and more contracts and jobs are put at risk – people are worried sick about how they will cope.

“The Government must urgently listen to the voices of workers and UK manufacturing and focus on defending decent jobs before even more damage is done.”
