Johnson must now set out the terms of reference without dragging heels, demands GMB Union

GMB has responded after the Prime Minister heeded the unions call for a public Inquiry into the pandemic.

Rehana Azam, GMB National Secretary, said:

"I've written to the Prime Minister three times since June and spoke to his Ministers several times over the past year calling for a public inquiry.

"GMB cautiously welcomes the fact he has finally listened.

“ GMB cautiously welcomes [this public inquiry]. The Prime Minister must now set out the terms of reference, including an exact date, without dragging his heels.

Rehana Azam, GMB National Secretary

"But millions of workers were put in harm's ways and thousands died. We need answers and we need justice for all the families who lost loved ones.

"The Prime Minister must now set out the terms of reference, including an exact date, without dragging his heels."
